

Everybody Trusts

Muhammad ﷺ

As a young boy, Muhammad ﷺ took care of people's sheep and goats. He led the animals across rocky hills, kept them safe, and made sure they all had enough to eat and drink.

When he was twelve, Muhammad ﷺ travelled with his uncle Abu Talib to sell goods in Syria. The trip was long and tiring, but Muhammad ﷺ worked hard and helped his uncle all the time.

The people of Makkah loved Muhammad ﷺ. They called him as-Sadiq, the Truthful, because of how honest he was. Everyone trusted him, so they also called him al-Amin, the Trustworthy.

O Allah, please help us be truthful and trustworthy like Muhammad ﷺ.

One day, a kind and wealthy lady named Khadijah hired him to help sell her goods. Muhammad ﷺ worked hard. He was honest and treated customers kindly. Because of him, Khadijah made more money than ever before.

Khadijah was amazed by his excellent work, so she sent a friend to ask if he would marry her. Muhammad ﷺ agreed, and soon they were happily married.

They had two sons, Abdullah and Qasim, who sadly passed away as babies. Their four daughters, Zaynab, Ruqayyah, Umm Kulthum and Fatimah grew up to be kind, smart, and strong young women.
